GERMANS LOSE IN CHAMPAGNE SECTOR

FRENCH MAKE RAPID PROGRESS. BRITISH ARE WITHIN TWO MILES OF DOUAI

(By the Associated Press)

Paris, Oct. 12.—The river Suippe has been crossed at several places and the Retourne river has been reached between Hodilecourt and Saultstremy, according to official announcement last night. The French advance in Champagne has been very rapid. Sugny and Machault have almost been reached. Thus the whole series of powerful enemy barriers has fallen at a single blow.

British Nearing Douai

London, Oct. 12.—British forces last night continued to advance north of Sensee river, Field Marshal Haig announces. A village less than two miles from Douai has been captured. Farther north the British have pushed to the east of Henin-Letard northwest of Douai and are in the environs of Ennay.

French Make Good Progress

Paris Oct. 12.—Continued progress was made last night by French troops along the entire Champagne front, the war office announces. The French have penetrated up to the town of Vouciers this morning and were holding the general line of the Retourne river and road from Pauvres to Vouziers.

NEW PREMIER FOR AUSTRIA

NEW APPOINTEE SAID TO BE PACIFIST AND STRONGLY ANTI-GERMAN.

(By the Associated Press)

Zurich, Oct. 12.—Baron Von Hussarek, Austrian Premier, has resigned, according to the Vossische Zeitung's Vienna correspondent, and Emperor Charles has chosen Professor Lammasch, pacifist and adversary of the alliance with Germany to succeed to the premiership.

FUNERAL OF ERNEST
CASSIDY AT WAPANUCKA

The funeral of Ernest W. Cassidy, eldest son of Rev. M. A. Cassidy and wife of Ada, was held at Wapanucka Friday afternoon. The services were conducted by Rev. W. M. Crutchfield of Ada and Rev. Mitchell of Wapanucka. The body was laid to rest with the honors of the Masonic fraternity. Also, some soldiers took part. The business houses of the town closed and the largest crowd on record attended the funeral. It was a striking tribute to the popularity of the young man in that community.

Ernest W. Cassidy was popular not only in the town of his residence at the time of his death, but was known and greatly beloved by thousands of people in Ada as well as everywhere else he was known. His genial personality, his love for all mankind, his disposition to weep with those who grieved and rejoice with those who were joyful, had endeared him to all who were privileged to know him.

Besides the family the following friends from Ada attended: H. E. Morris, W. D. Hays, Prof. E. A. MacMillan and Miles Grigsby.

Ada Man Killed in France.

The casualty list contains the name of David Scott of Ada as among the killed. Diligent inquiry made by the News failed to disclose anything more than the fact that he was at one time employed in the oil fields of this county. Further mention will be made as soon as more facts can be ascertained. So far as known this is the first man from Ada listed as killed.

HUNS RETREAT ON WIDE FRONT

ALLIED VICTORIES FORCE RE-TIREMENT ON SECTOR OF SIXTY-FIVE MILES.

London, Oct. 12.—The British have captured St. Aubert, northeast of Cambrai, and thus are within seven miles of the main German lateral line of communications, namely the Valenciennes-Lille railway.

The enemy is retreating on the whole front of sixty-five miles from the Soissons-Laon road to Grand Pre, north of the Argonne forest, and also from the north bank of the Suippe river to Champagne.

The enemy is falling back toward Vouziers. Latest allied reconnaissances show that the Germans have nothing of a military nature afloat and nothing in the air along the Flemish coast. The Germans are now engaged in blocking the harbors of Ostend and Zeebrugge.

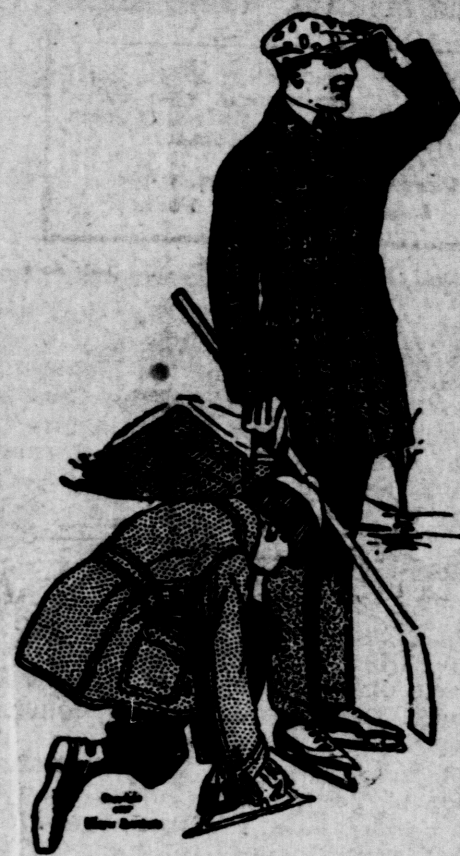

Reports on Friday show that the Germans are falling back on sixty-five miles of front beginning east of Lens and extending around the big Cambrai-Le Cateau-St. Quentin salient to south of St. Quentin, and approximately sixty-five miles from the Soissons-Laon road eastward to Grand Pre in Champagne. Between these two sections of front there is a stretch of the line twenty miles long that is standing fast. This latter stretch is between Moy, south of St. Quentin, and the Soissons-Laon road, involving the celebrated St. Gobain position.

According to other newspapers Prince Maximilian will have no difficulty in accepting without restrictions President Wilson's program.

Basket ball, especially among students, also is generally played.

has been secretary of the Council of commendation of the public. In relinquishing the position he has filled

so acceptably he has the knowledge and consolation of duty well done.

It is reported today that Austria
has accepted President Wilson's peace terms. If this is true, it means that the Austrians must lay down their arms and get out of Italy and withdraw their few divisions from the western front. With Austria out, if Germany wants to keep up the fight,
she can do so, but she will not keep it up long. The end will be quick and sweet.

State Chairman Phillips urges all Liberty Loan workers to push the campaign all the harder in the face of the insidious tales being put out by the German sympathizers who have sought to impede the work by spreading propaganda about Germany being almost out of the war.
This was done with the object, of course, of making people think the

LUXEMBURG MAY BECOME REPUBLIC

Paris, Oct. 12.—Dethronement of Grand Duchess Marie Adelaide of Luxembourg and the establishment in the Grand Duchy of a democracy
like that of France, was demanded in resolutions adopted here recently at a mass meeting of subjects of Luxembourg residing in Paris.

The meeting was called principally to protest against the announced engagement of Crown Prince Rupprecht
of Bavaria and Princess Antoinette, youngest sister of the Grand Duchess. Prince Rupprecht
has been commander of the German forces along the northern part of the western front in France. Recently it was reported that he had been displaced, but later restored to his command.

The Grand Duchess was characterized by several speakers as being entirely Germanophile, one declaring that when Luxembourg was entergrated by the Germans, she telegraphed to the Emperor William, "I pray God every day that our army
may be successful and soon bring back to Germany a heavy harvest of laurels."

Another speaker declared that she went twice to Longwy, personally to congratulate the German Crown Prince Frederick on having captured
it. The first time, he said, she was too early and had to hurry back under French fire. The second time, she presented the Crown Prince with a bouquet in the streets of Longwy.

Funck Brentano, the historian,
presided at the meeting and made the principal speech, expressing indignation at the engagement of the Prince Rupprecht and the Princess Antoinette and declaring it was a political affair, "devised by Berlin and readily accepted by the Grand Duchess to please the Germans."

"There can be no question of love
in such a marriage," he declared.
"The Princess is but nineteen, while the Bavarian Crown Prince, whose first wife died of sorrow at his conduct toward her, is fifty and looks like a man of sixty."

PEACE OFFER FROM TURKEY EXPECTED

Washington, Oct. 11.—Proposals
of peace on the part of Turkey, reported in London dispatches, had not been received in Washington tonight. State department officials expressed deep interest in the reported
move by the Turkish government,
but stated positively that no proposal had reached them.

At the Spanish embassy, which has charge of Turkish affairs in the United States, and through which any peace proposal from Constantinople undoubtedly would be transmitted, it was said no intimation had come from Madrid that a communication of this nature might be expected.

BASEBALL MAGNATES FACE KNOTTY PROBLEM

(By the Associated Press)
New York, Oct. 12.—Major league baseball magnates face a knotty problem at the coming annual meetings when they will be called upon to decide the status of the player at present under contract or reserve.
Very few of the club owners hold the opinion, apparently, that it will be possible to resume league operations next Spring. If such proves to be the case and there are few indications to the contrary, it would appear that the majority of players who figured in the 1918 pennant races will not receive contracts during the early months of next year.

According to the present system it is mandatory upon the clubs to renew their options or reserve clause upon players not later than January 1 each year and to follow this action by mailing contracts to the players not later than February 1. It is extremely doubtful if this procedure will be followed in 1919. Under the ordinary ruling a player who did not receive his contract by March 1 would become a free agent and upon the resumption of big league baseball
would be in a position to sell his services to the highest bidder.

It is understood, however, that the magnates will hold that the business of baseball was suspended under instructions from the government and that since the right to operate was beyond their control all contracts and other legal phases are suspended au-tomatically. Under this construction the contract of the player carries over until such time as the government gives consent for a renewal of the business of baseball. Thus if the professional leagues do not resume until 1920 the year of 1919 would be considered as non-existent in so far as it might affect a player's contract.

There is still another angle to the proposition which involves the magnates and the two major leagues as individuals and co-operating business organizations. It might be held to be within their rights to refuse to negotiate with or for the services of a player who, previously to the suspension of the game, was the property of another club. If such action were generally adopted the player would be obliged to report back to his original club for a renewal of his contract or a release, if he desired to re-enter play in either of the big leagues.

WORSE THAN GAS

Kidney disease is no respecter of persons. It attacks young and old alike. In most cases, the victim is warned of the approaching danger.
Nature fights back. Headache, indigestion, insomnia, lame back, lumbo-go, sciatica, rheumatism, pain in the loins and lower abdomen, difficulty in urinating, all are indications of trouble with kidneys.

When such symptoms appear you will almost certainly find quick relief
in GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules.

This famous old remedy has stood the test for two hundred years in helping mankind to fight off disease.
It is imported direct from the home laboratories in Holland, and may be had at almost every drug store. Your

IN MEMORIAM.
J. Frank Maddox was born in Grayson County, Texas, June 1st, 1884, and died in Oklahoma City in the prime of his useful life October 6th, 1916. He was the youngest of a splendid family of four children all of whom were so reared and taught that they became men and women of ability and character.

In 1904 at the age of twenty he came to Ada, entering the employ of the Mason Drug Company. His efficient and faithful attention to business, together with his affable manner and obliging disposition won him
many friends and made him a valuable druggist.

He engaged in business on his own account in 1909 operating the Mad-Ox Drug Store in the quarters now occupied by the Hope-Conn Drug Co.

On November 9th, 1910, he married one of Ada's most loved and admired young women, Miss Gladys Torbett, and together these estimable
young people began the journey amidst the kind words and good wishes of hosts of admiring friends.

During the next few years he built up a splendid business by hard work,
by efficient service, by his own sterling worth and constant desire to accommodate. But the long hours and close confinement began to undermine his health and he sold his business in 1914 to find a different climate and a change of work.

For a year and a half he traveled for the John T. Milliken Company out of Ottumwa, Iowa. He then accepted a position with the Alexander Drug Company and headquartered at Amarillo, Texas, for about eighteen months; but last June he moved to Ardmore which was his home at the time of his death.

His last illness was of short duration, beginning with a sharp attack
of Spanish Influenza which rapidly passed to pneumonia and brought about his untimely death, in spite of the utmost endeavor of skilled physicians of Oklahoma City and Ardmore.

As a citizen he was an enterprising booster identified with every move for the up-building and good of the town. He was of undoubted integrity of character, lofty ideals and exemplary habits. He was an apostle of good cheer who had the strength of soul to fight the battles of life manfully with quiet bearing and a real smile which was both a tonic and an inspiration. Perhaps the outstanding characteristic of his life was his habitual unselfishness and consideration for others.

He was a clean sportsman, loving the fields, the woods and the great out-of-doors. There was never a truer more loyal friend.

We grieve with his sorrowing father and mother who face their declining years without the solace of his stalwart strength and the comfort of his cheery presence.

His young wife, with whom he walked hand-in-hand for a few short years is indeed bereft. We extend to her our sincere sympathy in this her dark hour and commend her to that Being who doeth all things well.

His passing has left the world poorer, but we cherish his memory in our hearts, we shall strive to emulate his virtues and learn the secret of his unselfishness.

A FRIEND.

WORK ON DAVIS MONUMENT STOPPED

(By the Associated Press)
Louisville, Ky., Oct. 12.—Work on the great obelisk being reared at Fairview, Ky., the birthplace of Jefferson Davis, as a memorial to the Southern Confederacy's one president, has been ordered stopped because of a scarcity of material.

The obelisk is being built of pour-concrete and when finally completed will be 351 feet high. It already has been carried upward nearly 200 feet.
Because of the demand for that

AMERICANS CREATE WONDER AMONG ALLIES

London, Oct. 12.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—"American soldiers seem to grow in the night so that each morning there are more of them than before," writes a British soldier in France to his relatives in England. "Americans are the topics of conversation everywhere," he continues. "The villages are full of them."

"Their automobile trucks are on all the roads, and their columns of infantry are everywhere. We are beginning to know the songs they sing and the phrases they use."

"To many of us they were a complete mystery at first. We had heard of America only as a distant country. Then suddenly they were in France—tall, well-trained men with a genius for making friends and adapting themselves to new conditions. We watched them with curiosity at first, surprised to find how like they were to other men."

"Then, before we had quite recovered from the first pleasant surprise, they were fighting—making a reputation in a trade where the test is not easy. They came up from their villages singing, and filtered into the trenches, more and more of them each day. The papers began to talk about their fighting, but we thought 'Surely they cannot be doing much yet.' And then all at once we began to see it for ourselves, and we were of the opinion straightway that the papers had not grasped the wonder of the facts."

"They were so keen and so fresh, those first Americans. And every day others as keen and fresh are going up to the line, and every day their places are being taken in the villages by yet others."

"They are merry and light-hearted but underneath they are taking this business very seriously, and some of their talk shows it. That's the way to take one's fighting, you know—neither too much in earnest—which is morbid—nor too much as a joke—which is foolish. The wise man is he who neither overrates himself or underestimates danger. The Americans are wise men."

"The peasants like them; the old French mothers mother them. They have an instinct which gives them a realization of the home sickness which must sometimes come to these men. When years have gone by, and it is possible to see the war in perspective, it may be possible to give full value to what those women have done."

"Meanwhile, as I was saying, the Americans go on arriving and spreading all over France."

It purges the stomach and bowels of fermented food and impurities, sweetens the breath, clears the complexion and makes you feel fine. Price $1.25 per bottle.—Gwin & Mays Drug Co., special agents.

TERRIBLY SWOLLEN

Suffering Described As Torture
Relieved by Black-Draught.

Rossville, Ga.—Mrs. Kate Lee Able, of this place, writes: "My husband is an engineer, and once while lifting, he injured himself with a piece of heavy machinery, across the abdomen. He was so sore he could not bear to press on himself at all, on chest or abdomen. He weighed 165 lbs., and fell off until he weighed 110 lbs., in two weeks."

He became constipated and it looked like he would die. We had three different doctors, yet with all their medicine, his bowels failed to act. He would turn up a ten-cent bottle of castor oil, and drink it two or three days in succession. He did this yet without result. We became desperate, he suffered so. He was swollen terribly. He told me his suffering could only be described as torture."

I sent and bought Theodor's Black-Draught. I made him take a big dose, and when it began to act he fainted, he was in such misery, but he got relief and began to mend at once. He got well, and we both feel he owes his life to Theodor's Black-Draught."

Theodor's Black-Draught will help you to keep fit, ready for the day's work. Try it! NC-131

Control Your Curiosity.

When you see the fire engines rush past your home or office, do not hurry to a telephone and call the fire department to find out where the blaze is.

If you do you are adding to the work of the greatly depleted staff of telephone operators and you are increasing the work of the operator at the fire headquarters, who is busy in sending companies to the fire, in receiving reports as to the blaze and perhaps in getting other fire alarms.—Ex.

NO NEED OF SUCH REFINEMENT.

Of course it was public property that the Taketown railway trains did not dash along like a hurricane being pushed, nor did they travel as fast as a rumor, but the journey in question had just about put the "lid on."

Mr. T. Raveller was one of the long-suffering passengers on this occasion, and was getting anxious about the time, as he had an appointment at the other end.

"Say, porter," he shouted, leaning his head out of the window, "what time is it?"

"Time? Sorry, sir, I don't know," replied the luggage lifter.

"Don't know!" shouted Raveller.

"Hang it, man, how is it you don't carry a watch?"

"Well, sir, you see," said the portmanteau pulverizer, "we hardly ever need a watch on this road; what we need is a calendar."—Stray Stories.

Could Do No Less.

"Does Mrs. Dubwaite object to your using profanity?"

"Well," replied Mr. Dubwaite, with a thoughtful air, "she used to object strenuously when I addressed a few appropriate remarks to our motorcar on the occasion of a breakdown fifty or sixty miles from the nearest shop, but she permits me to express myself rather freely about the kaiser."

MEKE PLAY.

Howe—What's the difference between a flying fish and a swimming fish?
Wise—Oh! easy; one flies to rise and the other rises to flies.

Aye, Aye!
"The oculist quite proud should be,"
Remarked old William Wise;
"For oculists look well, you see,
In other people's eyes."

Plenty of Others.

First Merchant—Say, I don't think much of this guy Diogenes who went around with a lantern hunting for an honest man.

Second Ditto—Oh, I guess he was all right, but he showed bad business ability by putting his money in a glim instead of advertising.

Poor Hub!

The Dressmaker (gushingly)—Ah, my dear madam, I consider that the most perfect fit I have ever seen.
The Dear Madam—Perfect fit, fiddlesticks! You should see the one my husband will have when he sees the price.

Unusual.

"There was a sensational case of kidnapping on our block yesterday."
"You don't say so! What was it?"
"The baby in the third house who generally keeps everybody awake with its yells slept all night."

He Won.

Brown—They say that love is a lottery.
Black—I'm convinced of it, and I am sure I won.
Brown—Got a perfect wife, eh?
Black—No, I haven't got any.

Singular Woman.

"Do you know, I think Mrs. Jumpley is peculiar in some ways?"
"Specify."
"For one thing she always tells her exact age. In fact she does it boastfully."

A DEFENSE.

Bronson—Most of the airs people put on about the benefits of foreign travel are all a bluff.

Woodson—Yes. But you've got to travel yourself in order to be able to call the bluff.

WAITERS DRUGGED HOTEL PATRONS

"Mickey Finn" Powders Fed to Those Who Failed to Give Tips.

GET STUFF IN RAID

Chicago Officers Unearth Packages of Poison at Headquarters of Union
and Place Maker and Dispenser Under Arrest.

Chicago.—Four persons were arrested and more than 100 waiters were taken into custody at the headquarters of the Chicago Waiters' union, in connection with the alleged wholesale drugging of patrons of leading hotels, restaurants and clubs by waiters whose displeasure the patrons had incurred by their neglect or refusal to leave tips on the table after being served. The raid on the headquarters of the union was made by detectives from the state attorney's office. Three persons were held, the others being released after questioning by the state's attorney.

The men held were W. Stuart Wood, a waiter, and Blake Powell and John William, day and night bartenders at the waiters' union headquarters. Wood, it is alleged, manufactured the drug which was sold over the bar to all members of the union applying for it. Evidence against the waiters was obtained by a detective agency after a number of guests of one of the city's leading hotels had become suspiciously ill.

Powder Known as "Mickey Finn."
A tasteless and odorless powder, known as "Mickey Finn," which caused the victim to become sick at the stomach and left him in a nervous and weakened condition, was the drug used, the powder being what is known

The Powders Had Been Used Freely
by the Waiters.

to druggists as a tartar emetic compound. Analysis made by Chicago chemists showed that it contained ten grains of salt of antimony and potassium tartrate. According to one physician's report, 6.17 grains have been known to cause death.

The action of the powder is said to resemble ptomaine poisoning so closely that physicians who attended persons to whom the powders had been administered by waiters diagnosed the victims' illness as such. According to the evidence the powders had been used freely by waiters in most of the clubs and in many hotels and restaurants at times.

St. Louis.—A well-dressed stranger walked into the office of George A. Holthaus, district manager of the Miller Rubber company, introducing himself as a salesman for the company. After chatting a few minutes he said his expense check had failed to arrive and handed Holthaus a telegram which read: "Authorize you draw on us $100." It was signed in the company's name. Holthaus gave him the money only to find out later he was not connected with the company.

NORRIS GIVES VIEWS OF OFFICIAL WASHINGTON

P. A. Norris, Federal Fuel Administrator for Oklahoma, has just returned from Washington where he went in company with the fuel administrators of Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri and Kansas for a conference with United States Fuel Administration. He was in Washington when the note from Prince Maximilian was received and was enabled to get a personal interpretation of Washington sentiment relative to the peace move of the central empires.

"Most of the officials I talked with believe Germany and Austria want peace and want it badly," says Mr. Norris. "The German army is beaten, according to the view of most of the Washington leaders, and the German rulers are anxious to get out with the most territory and spoils possible. There is no intention of surrendering at this time, but peace on a before the war basis would be considered."

"The answer of President Wilson to Prince Maximilian received the hearty endorsement of all the Washington officials. They realize that Germany wants to get out with all the spoils of the victor, but that President Wilson will see that this does not occur. The general opinion is that if Prince Maximilian says he represents the German autocratic government, he will alienate the German people; if he answers that he represents the German people, he will alienate the war party. The answer is really looked upon as a masterpiece."

"It is firmly believed in Washington that President Wilson's reply is to be interpreted as demanding the return to France of Alsace-Lorraine and payment for all damages in France and Belgium."

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

WIDE-AWAKE FISH.

"Well," said Mrs. Pike to Mrs. Salmon, "we can never greet each other in the morning as some creatures can do."

"How is that?" asked Mrs. Salmon. "There are people who say to each other in the mornings: 'Well, and how did you sleep last night?'"

"And there are creatures and animals who wake up and look at each other and who say: 'Breakfast time. I'm hungry. I do believe I've slept enough.'"

"No," agreed Mrs. Salmon, "we can never say such things to each other." "It seems to me," said Mrs. Pike, "that it is a very foolish waste of time to sleep. Think of the hours one misses. Great things might be going on which we would miss. We might find some food whereas if we were asleep we couldn't find it."

"They say it's impossible to eat and sleep at the same time. I wouldn't want to try it, for I've no desire to sleep."

"You express my sentiments," said Mrs. Salmon.

"I don't know just what are sentiments," said Mrs. Pike, "but I am sure they must be all right."

"Sentiments," said Mrs. Salmon, "are ideas or thoughts, and when I say that you express my sentiments I say that you have my very ideas and thoughts and are saying them as I am thinking them."

"I see, I see," said Mrs. Pike. "Well, to continue, let us talk about our own wisdom and the foolishness of others." "Let us do so," said Mrs. Salmon, "for I can imagine no subject more interesting to talk about. If we talked about horses as some people might do it would be very foolish, for what care we for horses?"

"Nothing at all," said Mrs. Pike. "That's just it," agreed Mrs. Salmon. "We care nothing at all for horses. We don't want to ride them—we wouldn't have carriages and horses if they were given to us and we wouldn't turn somersaults upon them as ladies do in circus acts."

"Of course we wouldn't have horses," said Mrs. Pike, "for we don't want to use anything that has to stay out of the water."

"The water is our home," said Mrs. Salmon. "You know I think it is the nicest home, too. It's such a big home—such a gloriously big watery home. I believe I could sing a song about it."

"If you think you could do so," said Mrs. Pike, "then by all means do it. But don't let your voice crack, will you?"

"I never heard of the voice of a fish cracking," said Mrs. Salmon, "so I don't think I need fear that danger."

"Well, don't let yourself swallow all of the water, for the rest of us need some!" said Mrs. Pike, winking one of her shiny, glassy eyes.

"That's an oldtime fish joke," said Mrs. Salmon. "It's as old to me as is the fact that I don't sleep and that you don't sleep and that many of the goldfish family and some of the insects don't sleep. Yes, there are a few sensible creatures who don't believe in spending their time, or even a part of it, in sleeping foolishly! But I must sing my song:

I never sleep, I never sleep,
And I don't weep, I don't weep.
For though there's water around my eyes,
It does not give me a surprise.
For tears come from a sudden shock,
Like one's head cut off upon a block.
Ah, no, I love my watery home.
I love the waves, the weeds, the foam.
For the land I do not care a pin—
And as I finish I wave a fin.

"Splash, splash," said Mrs. Pike, "that was a very nice song I think. Of course as I am a fish I haven't many brains and so my opinion isn't worth much. If a child or some one with intelligence heard that song they would doubtless think it pretty poor. But I liked it and I think you made a fine ending by waving your fin—just like making a low bow."

"Thank you for your kind words," said Mrs. Salmon.

In a Dream.

Good office boys are at a premium just now, and the one engaged by a certain business man in one of our principal cities certainly does not come up to the prewar standard. He sat at a little desk in the boss' room, and that was about all he seemed capable of doing. One afternoon a business man called:

"I want to speak to you privately," he said to the principal, with a glance toward the office boy.

"Oh, that's all right," responded the boss wearily, "he doesn't know he's there."

Successful.

Missing her two-year-old, the mother went to look for him, and found the youngster in the kitchen on the floor by the coal scuttle, carefully wiping a piece of coal with his little handkerchief.

"Cleanin' coal, mamma," he explained.

"Why, sonny, come away from there. You can't clean coal."

"Yes, mamma. See?"—showing the blackened handkerchief. "All comin' off—all black comin' off!"

Doing Well.

"Is your boy getting along well in college?"
"Fairly well. He's made two hits as a pinch hitter this spring."

Don's mother went out wearily, to look over the bloom of the garden, but the garden, like all things about the little home, had lost interest since Donald went to war. If he had not been such an exceptional son, his mother might not have missed him so bitterly.

Always she had loved her boy with a selfish love. Fiercely she had claimed him in her widowhood, her own. Donald's father had died when the lad was young but his mother had taken a silent, almost unconscious vow, that the boy must live to care for her, even as his father would have cared, if he had been spared.

The little home became eloquent of those things which pleased his mother. Donald did not realize that young women whose acquaintance he made, and for whom he entertained at times a passing interest, were not made welcome in this home of his endeavor; he wondered vaguely, why mother found in each girl some disappointing quality. But he knew that the friendships grieved her, also he saw that she grew more frail each day, and that she found her only joy in his presence.

He had hidden her good-by, standing on the vine-shaded porch, where nasturtiums nodded their bright heads, and though Don had been cheery and brave, a shadow lurked in his eyes, a shadow which his mother could not define. Now, he was in France, far away France, where guns boomed their warning, where men fought for the safety of this beautiful land spread about her.

Donald's mother sank down upon the porch. So many years she had devoted herself jealously to her son, there had been no need for other close companionship. Now she was alone. Tears made their way through her wrinkled fingers, she did not hear a light step on the path at the side. It was a girl's voice which roused her.

"I beg your pardon," said the voice. "I have been directed to you. I am anxious to spend my summer in the country, and it was thought possible, that you, being alone, would take me in."

"I could not care for any one—Donald's mother was beginning, when the girl interrupted eagerly.

"That I would not ask, only that it might be a mutually beneficial arrangement—you taking me into your home, I helping in every way."

And, because of her heart-aching loneliness, because her need of human comfort was so great, Donald's mother did, what she never would have believed herself willing to do, she took the strange girl into her home.

As time passed, she was glad. It was good to hear footsteps at night in Don's room, even though the steps were so different and light; it was good to see a bright young face opposite her own at table. But best of all, were the confidences over Don's pictures, pictures in childish frocks to the latest in soldier's uniform.

Myra—that was the girl's name—went to the post office each day, returning with Don's bulky letters. Together they read them. It was Myra at last who answered letters, her firm hand tracing readily lines which the trembling fingers could not master; so that Donald's letters came to be a composite of them both.

Donald was reported missing; killed, it was believed, by a German plane. Her light step dragged as Myra moved with difficulty up the flower-bordered path. Donald's mother was there on the porch where he had hidden her good-by. Twice Myra tried to speak to tell her terrible news, but that duty was spared her. The mother looking into the girl's wide eyes read their message and understood.

Diffidently the young woman followed the bent form of the other into the house. "I," she murmured, "oh! I suffer with you."

Donald's mother turned in unexpected passion.

"What do you know of suffering?" she cried. "You! I love him. I am his mother."

The girl raised her white tear-stained face. "I," she quietly replied, "am his wife."

"When?" the mother asked unbelievably, "could that have happened?"

"In the city," the girl answered. All life had gone from her voice.

"And you knew when you came to me that I was his mother?"

"Don sent me to comfort you," she said.

The mother looked again into the young face whose sorrow was now her own, then all at once she opened the arms which had been closed to all but her son, so the two clung together.

It was a messenger on the porch who called the young wife to answer his summons, when, presently Myra returned, her eyes were shining with some great inner joy.

"Can you bear happiness?" she asked Don's mother, "the great happiness of knowing that your son was not killed as reported, that he is but wounded slightly and in a hospital, longing to hear from you and me—" and slowly the rigidity left the older woman's face. When she spoke her voice rang with a tenderness it had never known.

"Daughter," she said, "we will write to him now."

MRS. M'ADOO APPEALS TO LOAN WORKERS

Mrs. Byron Norrell, chairman of the women's department of Pontotoc county, received the following wire this morning, which is being sent to all chairmen in the United States:

"The president has called on the nation to over subscribe the loan as an imperative measure toward certain and complete victory. The national woman's liberty loan committee appreciating all you have already done calls upon you to take that message home to your community. Over subscription of the quota in your district must be the personal responsibility of every liberty loan worker.—Mrs. Wm. G. McAdoo, Chairman National Woman's Liberty Loan Committee."

SAYS HERE'S SURE

CURE FOR PNEUMONIA
Mrs. M. L. Hewitt, of Deming, N. M., gives a remedy for pneumonia and influenza. Marcus A. Redding of Los Angeles, she says, declares it has never failed to relieve and cure patients suffering from this disease. Mrs. Hewitt says she has tried it successfully. This simple remedy was discovered 20 years ago.

Saturate a ball of cotton one inch in diameter with spirits of grain alcohol, add three drops of chloroform to each ball of cotton, she writes. Place between the patient's teeth, after first using vaseline on the gums to prevent burning and let the patient inhale fumes in long deep breaths for 15 minutes or more. Then rest for 15 minutes or more, inhale again—and repeat 20 times. Change the cotton every seven minutes. The result will be that the lungs will relax and expand to their normal condition.

"In 24 hours the patient is out of danger and in 48 hours cured, although weak," says Mrs. Hewitt.

JAPANESE OUTCASTS DEMAND RECOGNITION

Tokio, Oct. 12.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—Japanese reformers, stirred by the recent food riots in which the "eta" or outcast class of society took a prominent part, are advocating the abolition of the caste regulations which hedge about these people on the ground that the restrictions are distinctly out of consonance with the spirit of modern Japan.

The "eta" might be compared to the pariahs of India. They number more than 1,000,000 and are said to be the descendants of Korean captives brought to Japan during the wars of the sixth century. Others trace their origin to the introduction of Buddhism in Japan in the eighth century when the taking of animal life was looked upon by adherents of the new faith with abhorrence and disdain. From the earliest days the "eta" have been slaughtering of cattle and other livestock and today the majority of these people obtain their livelihood as butchers and tanners.

Legally the "eta" have the same rights as other Japanese but socially they are outcasts. Forbidden to mingle with high-class Japanese or to marry outside their own caste, the abattoir workers and their families live together in towns and villages in western and southern Japan. Included in their number are many radicals who see in the growing spirit of democracy an opportunity to end forever for themselves and children the social ostracism to which for centuries their forbears have been subjected.

The rice disturbances gave the "eta" the opportunity to show their disapproval of existing conditions. Many of their women in the city of Osaka led attacks upon food dealers and property. With the settlement of the trouble Japanese editors and publicists suggest the "eta" should be brought out of their settlements and encouraged to live and associate with their so-called betters as a part of the plan to more thoroughly democratize Japan.
